the The Mikvah Queen:

In the anti everything hippie culture of early 80s Ithaca New York what rituals can a girl borrow steal or invent to make sense of puberty Jane Schwartz a lonely Talmud quoting disco worshipping eleven year old girl builds a mikvah Jewish ritual bath in the porta sauna of her middle aged neighbor Charlene Walkeson in hopes of saving Charlene from the ravages of cancer Will Jane also save her fierce fragile self Out of fragments of disco feminism cooking The first time I ever heard about how hard it was to be a left handed person I whirled around and began to sympathetically imagine the difficulties of phone booths and toll booths and doors all of it the world arranged for the comfort of righties If anyone
